The Greatest Novel of the Season

The Real Adventure

By HENRY KITCHELL WEBSTER

Interestingly told. It is a remarkably well sustained bit of lively narrative. The story unfolds itself in the dialogue and the action. The author is nowhere on the premises. It will be read with interest by large numbers of people.

—New York Globe

THE REAL ADVENTURE is the kind of novel that is a deep study of real life.

—New York Sun

A novel with a brilliant and forceful heroine. In its essential idea, in its characters, in its mode of treatment, it is delightfully and genuinely new.

—Boston Transcript

THE REAL ADVENTURE achieves the sense of actuality, of being a bit out of actual life without sacrificing imagination, beauty, spiritual truth. A worth while contribution to American fictional literature.

—New York Times

A master craftsman is telling this story—one skilled not only in the technique of his craft, but also in intricacies of social observation and analysis. It is no slight achievement to convince one's readers that a young woman surrounded by luxury is in the right in leaving her husband and children merely in pursuance of a theory.

—Philadelphia North American

Undoubtedly the best novel of American home life that has appeared in many a year. Worthy of the place in every American home—an excellent novel, sincere and true and wise beyond all doubt and bickering.

—New York Evening Sun

A thoroughly sane, broadly sympathetic, and highly interesting study of the married.

—Boston Herald

A brilliant novel, one far above the average in conception, power, and originality of thought.

FEAR GOD AND TAKE YOUR OWN PART

by Theodore Roosevelt

Preparedness is the question now uppermost in the minds of Americans. The nation is at last thoroughly aroused to the need of a larger and more efficient army and navy. Roosevelt's book is on this account remarkably opportune. With uncompromising directness, it tells the men and women of America how they must settle the vital problems of the day, and especially the most vital problem of our national defense. Your customers will be eager to read it, whether they heartily agree with all that Roosevelt asserts or not. They will afterwards discuss it, refer to it and make others wish to read it, so that in the course of a few weeks it is likely to become the most talked of book in America. Especially interesting at this time are such striking chapters as "America First—a Phrase or a Fact?" "International Duty and Hyphenated Americanism" and Appendix D, which contains Roosevelt's praiseworthy record as an advocate of preparedness. 416 pages. 8vo. Net $1.50

Important New Fiction

A Book of Friendliness

Mary Rose of Mifflin

By Frances R. Sterrett, Author of "The Jam Girl," "Up the Road with Sallie," etc.

Mary Rose is the only friendly soul in a big city apartment house where she has come to live after spending her childhood days in Mifflin, a little suburban town "somewhere up-State." In Mifflin people lived "side by side instead of up and down" as they do in apartment houses, and Mary Rose is amazed at the way the tenants come and go with selfish disregard of their neighbors. Through her friendly nature she becomes interested in the lives of some of these tenants and finally discovers that they are really human and have feelings, as many other people have. Mary Rose is a dear little friendly person full of the spirit of optimism. She is always seeing the best in things and through the influence of her cheerful personality many wonderful things happen in that apartment house, for Mary makes friends for everyone.

A Warwickshire Lad

By George Madden Martin, Author of "Emmy Lou," "Selina," etc.

William Shakespeare was this Warwickshire lad and this is one of the very few stories that deal with his boyhood. We have a delightful picture of the home life of the great poet-dramatist, in which we meet Shakespeare's generous, devoted mother, and his enterprising if unsuccessful father. And later we see him departing from his home, grown to manhood and the husband of Ann Hathaway, the playmate of his boyhood. The historic atmosphere is true in every detail, and the boyhood of the great genius is shown as accurately as it is possible to make it, and with charming imaginative touches.

A New York Mystery Romance

The Black Eagle Mystery

By Geraldine Bonner, Author of "The Girl at Central."

Hollings Harland, successful copper broker, and his partner, Johnstone Barker, have a lively interview in their office on the eighteenth floor of the big office building, "The Black Eagle," and almost immediately afterward Harland is found dead on the sidewalk, and Barker disappears. The papers all announce the suicide of Hollings Harland, but a lawyer and two detective friends call it murder and in their search for the criminal strike a clue that seems to lead direct to a young and beautiful woman as the guilty person. But they are all wrong, and it is not until little Mollie Babbitts, the lively telephone operator of "The Girl at Central," attempts to solve the mystery that the real clue is discovered. A clever mystery story with a delightful romance and an altogether charming heroine.

WHY IS A BOOK EXHIBIT?

WE asked a New York publisher, Why is a book exhibit? He confined his answer to the exhibit at the National Arts Club which had just closed: "Our house doesn't get enough out of it to pay for the trouble and the three or four expensive books which manage to disappear from our exhibit each year." A prominent mid-Western bookseller writes us: "All advertising pays more or less, and the work done by the 'Better Books of the Year Exhibit' undoubtedly helped some." In marked contrast to these statements is the enthusiastic account, appearing elsewhere in this issue, of the exhibit of religious books held recently by the H. Y. Otto Bookstore, of Williamsport, Pa. The answer of the manager of this store to the question, Why is a book exhibit? is, because "business leaped over 50 per cent above normal."

There are several types of book exhibits. There is the exhibit of the single publisher, conducted independently of the bookseller. A good example is the series of fifty or seventy-five special exhibits sent out annually to teachers' meetings, religious conventions, etc., by the Association Press. These are necessarily costly and, we imagine, from the standpoint of sales, show a net loss. A second type is the exhibit made by a number of publishers independently of the booksellers, such as that at the National Arts Club in New York City. There is also the exhibit of the sort conducted by the publishers and the Globe-Wernicke Co. with the co-operation of the local booksellers, an exhibit which has proved decidedly worth-while wherever the local booksellers have really gotten behind it. A variation of this exhibit was the 1914 Boston exhibit conducted by the publishers and the Globe-Wernicke Co., in which the local booksellers actually paid money to participate. This exhibit, perhaps the most successful in point of attendance yet held, drew out during the month, with the help of a continuous cannonade of speakers and everybody's "boosting" together, 9800 persons. The final type of exhibit is the one conducted by a local bookseller or booksellers, with the publishers' co-operation, an exhibit such as the religious book exhibit held in Williamsport.

Without exception these exhibits have been successful or have failed of any substantial results in proportion as they have had or lacked the support and active co-operation of the local booksellers. In the last analysis the bookseller is the man who sells the books in any community, he is the goose that lays the golden egg and as such cannot be disregarded. Just as it is poor business to put an exhibit into a town in which he is not willing to co-operate, so the chances of success are increased when he volunteers to take over the responsibility for the exhibit. Retail initiative in this respect should not be discouraged as in the Williamsport case where the bookseller at the beginning met with but "little encouragement" from the publishers, for it is through just such an experience that moribund book towns are resuscitated and booksellers who are in a rut are helped to regain their stride.

In this connection, a virgin field for the series of Home Library Week exhibits sent out by the publishers and the Globe-Wernicke Co. is the small city of 25,000 to 75,000 inhabitants, the city which has dropped off the book map or possibly has never been on it, in which the bookstore—there is usually but one—is in a comatose state. In the larger cities the well stocked bookstores are themselves a continuous book exhibit, the literary section of the daily press keeps books more or less before the public and something unusual must consequently be done to tempt the more sophisticated public to come to a book exhibit; even the bookseller in such a city is apt to regard a traveling book exhibit as "just another bookselling scheme." In the small city, however, the bookseller may not be able to afford an extensive stock of the latest books, his local paper gives him little or no book publicity, nothing ever happens to interest people in books and the bookseller may have lost his nerve and be rapidly losing his clientele. He may even be too discouraged to help himself as the H. Y. Otto Bookstore did. Such a bookseller would in most cases welcome the coming of a Home Library Week exhibit and it might easily mark the beginning of a rejuvenation of his business. Among the seventeen cities which the Home Library Week will visit this spring are but a couple of these smaller cities. Another year we should like to see a systematic attempt made to cover these smaller book towns in an effort to bring them once more into prominence on the salesmen's order books.

HOW WE "PUT OVER" AN EXHIBIT OF RELIGIOUS BOOKS

By J. H. ROESGEN, Manager H. Y. Otto Bookstore, Williamsport, Pa.

THE motives back of our exhibit of religious books were anything but freakish. They were the perennial desire of all live booksellers to attract new trade, and more particularly a desire to regain prestige which had been slipping from our store under less aggressive methods of management.

There are in our city about 65 churches, each in a flourishing condition and claiming collectively—as in most places—decidedly the best part of the population, as well as the majority. This gave us our cue—why not an exhibition of religious books?

We found no precedent for such an event and little encouragement at first from the denominational publishing houses to whom we appealed. We asked that each of the different firms let us have a good representative showing of their line for two weeks display in our store for the purpose of securing holiday orders. Persistency won and finally enough consented to make a thoroughly comprehensive exhibit.

The next point was advertising. We prepared a neat circular invitation for each of the six denominations and armed with a proof-sheet of this and the invoices from the different church publishing houses we started the rounds of the ministry. This for two ends: First, to acquaint personally each pastor with the prospective exhibit; and second, to secure the church mailing list, wherever possible, for the purpose of directing our circulars into the right channels. Our success here was undreamt of. Not only did we receive names by the thousand, but our ministerial friends seemed to vie with each other in giving publicity to the scheme. Consequently, before the opening of the affair it was gratuitously announced from the pulpits of some of the leading churches and mentioned in the church calendars of others; in these notices the pastors recommended that the members of the congregation see the exhibit and take advantage of this opportunity to order worth-while books. If more conservative (and therefore valuable) advertising medium than this could be found, we should like to hear of it!

There were over 1000 different books in all—a revelation alike to us and to our customers, for we had no idea that the exhibit would reach such magnitude. I recall writing to one firm a request to send their line by express, and my surprise on seeing a box weighing over 400 pounds being lifted tenderly from the express wagon! We arranged the books as artistically as possible, using a row of white covered tables straight down through the center aisle of the store, and had each table neatly placarded. To describe the tables separately would require too much space, but perhaps there is room to mention the best selling titles, which will give some idea of the varied nature of the exhibit.

On the Episcopal table, besides devotional books, were "The Reasons for Being a Churchman," and Benson's "Altar Fire." On the Methodist, Bishop Quayle's "Beside Lake Beautiful," and Laufer's "Incomparable Christ." On the Presbyterian, Dr. J. R. Miller's and Dr. J. T. Faris's books, including the former's "The Home Beautiful." On the Lutheran table several historical books, such as "Life of Luther," and "Missionary Heroes of the Lutheran Church." On the Catholic table, the "Lives of the Saints," "Monks of the West," "The Church and War" and a splendid line of fiction and poetry. On the Baptist table, "Great Poets and their Theology," "The State," by S. Z. Batten, "The Making of a Teacher," by our Governor, Martin G. Brumbaugh, and many others.

Of course we advertised in the newspapers and made a point of using liberal space on the Church Page which the local papers run every Saturday, and the Williamsport Sun, our biggest daily, sent a reporter in early in the week and gave us a two column write-up.

As to results—they can be imagined from the fact that business leaped over 50 per cent above normal during the two weeks, and we are still feeling the beneficial effects in increased sales. But of more consequence to us was the apparent fact that we were actually creating that prized asset known as "good will." And in doing it there was also the satisfying consciousness that we were doing for our customers something of real service. So it was a success even from the highest standpoint—for bookselling has its ideals, too. And I believe the customers of any community will appreciate that fact just as soon as they see sufficient evidence that the men behind the counters are conscious of it.

CAN PAGE PROPORTIONS BE STANDARDIZED?

THE mere fact that no definite standard for the page has been fixed, is no argument that there can be no standard, or that such standard cannot be ascertained, says W. R. Colton in an interesting article in The American Printer.

That the lack of standardization has led to confusion, he continues, cannot be disputed. Edward R. Currier in the last Graphic Arts and Crafts Book says: "The next specific thing to be done in the way of getting the lid off bad printing conditions is the universal standardization of sizes for catalogs and booklets, or, to carry it along to its logical conclusion, for at least every form of commercial printed matter. We know that all of the thousand and one conventional forms fall into a few well-defined classes; therefore a little concerted effort on the part of printers and advertising men, through their numerous conventions, could easily produce a scale of standards for them. To mention one example, a catalog should be either 6x9 or 9x12 inches. Novelty is a poor excuse for the present constant variation in size and form. There is plenty of room for novelty without that, and customers with no better reason than mere whim for desiring something different should be penalized to cover the expense incurred in departing from the standard, just as they are in any other form of manufacture. Printers know only too well the confusion that results from lack of standardization. They know the difficulty of finding the right size of sheet in stock at the paper house, because the paper house cannot possibly keep in stock the numerous kinds and colors of paper demanded.

Most heartily do I concur in all that Mr. Currier has written with regard to standardization, except that the standard may be other than 6x9. Why was this size ever determined upon? Who knows? Nothing in the voluminous literature on paper making seems to let in any light upon the why of the usual sizes, any or all of them. Certainly the various sizes and shapes were neither scientifically nor mathematically chosen, or there would never have been such remarkable variances in the proportions of their dimensions. Perhaps, like Topsy, they "just grewed." But, nevertheless, all through the history of printing, four certain fixed proportions of pages—the printer's, the golden, the regular and the hypotenuse oblongs—do occur again and again, and generally in the products of the best printers of their times. Way back in the beginnings of printing, in 1501, Aldus Manutius, of Venice, whose mark was a dolphin entwined about an anchor, printed a Vergil (the very first book printed in italic type) the trimmed page of which measured $3\frac{1}{2} \times 6$ inches, a page almost in the proportion which has since been known as the printer's oblong. The next year he printed a Statius measuring $3\frac{1}{8} \times 5\frac{7}{8}$ inches, the shape which Theodore L. DeVinne denominates the "regular." A Maximus Tyrius printed by Henry Stephens (Paris, 1557) measured $4 \times 6\frac{3}{4}$ inches, almost the golden oblong; and in 1678 Daniel Elzevir at Leyden printed the Decretals of Gregory with a size of page $4\frac{1}{2} \times 7\frac{1}{4}$ inches, the proportions of the hypotenuse oblong. Instances might be multiplied; but these quoted are proof that thus early these proportions of page were used; in modern times the octavo pages from both the Doves and the Kelmscott Presses will be found in nearly the proportion of seventy to one hundred for their width and height, within seven-tenths of one per cent of the proportions of the hypotenuse oblong.

For purposes of comparison these four shapes referred to above are thus expressed mathematically and algebraically:

Printer's oblong, proportion of width to height is 57.7%, or $3a^2$ equals b^2 .

Golden oblong, 61.8%, $a:b:b:a$ plus b .

DeVinne's regular, 66.2-3%, or $1\frac{1}{2}a$ equals b .

Hypotenuse oblong, 70.71%, or $2a^2$ equals b^2 .

Now of these four proportions, each having the sanction of age and of usage, but one can be the correct standard, and it would be presumptuous merely to declare that one is right and the others wrong. If one is right, then there must be good æsthetic reasons therefor for its rightness must be due to its satisfaction of the sense of beauty and proportion in the eye of the beholder. Certainly some one proportion is most pleasing to the eye, and the one most pleasing is the one which, æsthetically considered, must be chosen as the standard.

In an article entitled "About Sizes of Books," the late Theodore L. DeVinne, the acknowledged American authority on printing, gives six shapes of books as in common use, which shapes he designates as the narrow, the long, the regular, the broad, the quarto and the oblong. Of the broad, he says: "The broad shape is of different width, varying from six to eight tenths of the height of the leaf. Seven-tenths is an approved proportion." Now mark that quotation, "Seven tenths is an approved proportion," and then note how nearly he has come to the size of the hypotenuse oblong. He continues: "It is of service for the proper exhibition of broad diagrams and illustrations, and should be selected oftener than it is." He further gives a series of sizes for broad books, graduating his list by half-inches in height as follows:

3x2.1, 3.5x2.45, 4x2.8, 4.5x3.15, 5x3.5, 5.5x3.85, 6x4.2, 6.5x4.55, 7x4.9, 7.5x5.25, 8x5.6, 8.5x5.95, 9x6.3, 9.5x6.65, 10x7, 10.5x7.35, 11x7.7, 11.5x8.05, 12x8.4, 12.5x8.75, 13x9.1, 13.5x9.45, 14x9.8 and 14.5x10.15, each of which sizes comes within a few hundredths of an inch of the hypotenuse oblong.

Dr. Ostwald, the great German thinker, has fathered a project for an international format for books in the field of information, to be bound by chapters separately in paper covers, the whole book (in these chapter sections) to slide into a pasteboard cover. Our interest in this project lies in the sizes which he selected for his books. His plan demands that all the books in this field (informative literature) be made only in certain regular sizes in which the page of each size shall when doubled or halved retain the proportions of the original.

(The only proportion of page which when folded maintains the same proportions of width to height both in the folded and whole sheet is the hypotenuse oblong.) He determined that the width of each page should be to its height as 1 is to the square root of 2, the peculiarity of this shape being that it can be halved or doubled without affecting its proportions. He further chose the centimeter as the international basis of measurement, and limited the number of sizes for ordinary purposes to three. Reduced to inches these three proposed books measure 4 and $7\frac{1}{2} \times 6$ and $5\frac{1}{2} \times 6$; 6 and $5\frac{1}{2} \times 8$ and $7\frac{1}{2} \times 8$; and 8 and $7\frac{1}{2} \times 12$ and $5\frac{1}{2} \times 8$. The intermediate size, 6 and $5\frac{1}{2} \times 8$ and $7\frac{1}{2} \times 8$, is the one he chose for the standard, intending that all books not for the pocket and not requiring an ample page for display or diagram purposes would be of this size.

By the way, Dr. Ostwald also wrote an article proving that the inventive and scientific genius of the world was so far in advance of the average power of assimilation of new ideas that it would take the world at least twenty years to catch up with its gathering in of the many discoveries and scientific conclusions at present in available shape, so it is possible that he has also proved that his idea on the standard page will not immediately come into general use.

Taking Dr. Ostwald's premise that the leaf when folded should have the same proportions as the whole leaf, let us apply it to the four oblongs, for the use of which we have found abundant sanction, and selecting for them a hypothetical basis of width of six inches both because six inches is a fair average width for the pages of catalogs and books, and because six is an easy number to work with, let us lay out the four oblongs on that base.

Then the printer's oblong, the diagonal of which should be twice the base, will be found (without carrying out the decimals to too undue length) to be about 10.4 inches high; the golden, in which the base is to the height as the height is to the sum of the base and height, which proportion is based on Euclid's golden mean, will be about 9.7; De Vinne's regular, in which the base is to the height as 2 is to 3, would be 9 inches high; and the hypotenuse oblong, in which the height is the length of the diagonal of a square erected on the base, 8.4852 inches high.

Roughly, the percentages of these pages, width to height, would be:

Printer's oblong, 6×10.4 inches, 57.7 per cent.

Golden, 6×9 inches, 66.2-3 per cent.

Hypotenuse, 6×8.4852 inches, 70.71 per cent.

Folding each of these, let us compare the proportions of the folded with the whole leaf.

Printer's folded (5×6), 86.6 per cent, as compared with 57.7 per cent before folding.

Golden folded (4.85×6), 80.8 per cent, as compared with 61.9 per cent before folding.

Regular folded (4.5×6), 75 per cent, as compared with 66.2-3 per cent before folding.

Hypotenuse folded (4.2426×6), 70.71 per cent, exactly the same as before folding.

Thus the hypotenuse oblong proves itself mathematically the only one of the used shapes which will conform to Dr. Ostwald's proposition.

Æsthetically, a number of experiments before various groups of men demonstrate that the hypotenuse oblong is generally though not invariably chosen as the shape most pleasing to the eye.

For some years past a considerable amount of money has been expended by paper houses in recommending and advertising a size of letter paper called the executive, which size, though having a number of advantages to recommend it, yet failed of general acceptance, I am inclined to believe, chiefly because it departed so far in its proportions from the hypotenuse oblong, and I as firmly believe that the standard size of letterhead ($8\frac{1}{2} \times 11$ inches) remained in use against this exploitation of the executive size because to the eye of the general public it was a more pleasing shape.

Our popular magazines, with a few exceptions, cling to a size about $6\frac{7}{8} \times 9\frac{7}{8}$ inches, almost a hypotenuse oblong.

Harry M. Basford, in the June (1915) issue of The American Printer, in writing about poster stamps, says: "A stamp $2\frac{1}{8} \times 1\frac{1}{2}$ inches is rightly proportioned, and that is the average size." This size is within four-thousandths on an inch of the hypotenuse oblong.

The facts marshaled are no demonstration that the problem has been solved, nor has æsthetics as a science been sufficiently developed for definite laws to be laid down, but sufficient has been shown concerning the hypotenuse oblong to make it worthy of a trial, and a thorough tryout would pave the way to its acceptance or rejection as a base upon which all papers could be made to one certain proportion of length to width, which is a consummation devoutly to be wished.

CHICAGO COURT DECISION DIFFERENTIATES BOOKSELLERS FROM "DEALERS IN SECOND-HAND GOODS"

A CORRESPONDENT of the New York Times calls attention to a recent decision of a Chicago court which, in the light of the recent New York "second-hand dealer" ordinance is very suggestive. The question involved in this case, Eastman vs. Chicago (79 Ill. 178), is fundamentally identical with that raised in New York City, and Chief Justice Scott's ruling is of such interest that we reprint his decision practically in full:

"This prosecution was commenced under the last clause of Section 1, Chapter 24, of the ordinance of the City of Chicago, that declares 'any person who keeps a store, office, or place of business for the purchase or sale of second-hand clothing or garments of any kind, or second-hand goods, wares, or merchandise, is hereby declared to be a dealer in second-hand goods.'

"Defendants are booksellers dealing in such stock as is usually kept in a retail book store, and buy and sell in connection with their other business second-hand books. Whether buying and selling of old books come within the definition given in the ordinance of a 'dealer in second-hand goods' is a question that admits some discussion. The contents as well as the clause of the ordinance cited would seem to indicate the penalties imposed are leveled at 'junk dealers' and dealers in cast-off clothing. What is meant by 'second-hand goods, wares, or merchandise' is not defined, and is by no means clear as those words used in the ordinance.

"The offense with which defendants are charged is not expressly defined, and if their trade is rendered unlawful it is by the use of the comprehensive and rather indefinite terms 'goods, wares, or merchandise.' But what warrant can there be for designating 'old books' as 'second-hand goods, wares, or merchandise?' Like old paintings, they may have a peculiar value for the reason they are old. Certainly they cannot with any degree of accuracy be classed with old metals, rags, cast-off clothing, and other refuse matter.

* * * Old books, including those imported as well as those bought over the counter, constitute but part of the stock carried by defendants. Their trade consists chiefly of what are strictly new books. Obviously, the trade in second-hand books is a mere incident to their business. Exchanges of new books for old editions of the same work, or, perhaps, for old books, are constantly being made, and in turn they are sold as customers may be found; but that, we suppose, is done by most booksellers everywhere to a greater or less extent. It would be plainly unjust to characterize defendants as 'dealers in second-hand goods.' Trading in old or second-hand books is not their principal business, except so far as they import old and rare works. Surely it was not intended the provisions of the ordinance should be applied to importers of old and rare books. It is not so declared in the ordinance, and we are not willing to extend its provisions so as to include that trade by judicial construction. The local trade of defendants in second-hand books is insignificant, and is at most only incidentally connected with their main business, and does not, in our opinion, render them liable to the penalties denounced against dealers in 'second-hand goods' without having first obtained a license so to do."

LITERARY AFFAIRS IN PARIS.

ACCORDING to the special correspondent of The Dial the holiday season for the publishing and bookselling world of Paris was very different this year, as it was also last year, from what is ordinarily the case. The situation this year, however, is not quite so bad as it was last year. These facts are well brought out by the special catalogue devoted to gift books which the Paris Publishers' Club issues each winter. That for 1913-14—the holiday season before the war—contained 356 pages; 4600 copies were printed; 1500 francs' worth of copies were sold; over 13,000 francs' worth of advertisements were inserted; seventy-three publishing houses were represented, and thirty-three periodicals printed therein their paid prospectuses. In 1914-15—that is, four months after the breaking out of the war—the number of pages of the catalogue had fallen to 119, only twenty-nine publishers participated, and but three periodicals felt able to advertise their existence. The edition for this year contains some forty pages more than last year, which, however, leaves it nearly two hundred pages short of what it was before the war.

The head of the Hachette publishing house said to me a month ago: "One of the things that seems to characterize the present struggle is the terrible mortality on the battlefield. So far we have had fifty-four killed among our employees. In the war of 1870 we did not lose one. A friend of mine, also in the publishing business, has nine employees in the army. Five have been killed and four wounded. You see me back in harness again, though I retired several years ago." A sign, however, of returning prosperity is seen in the renewed activity among the bouquinistes along the parapet of the Quai Voltaire. At the moment of the battle of the Marne all their little boxes had the lids down and the contents removed to safer quarters. But the other afternoon, when I passed that way, I noticed that almost all of them are now open again, and the same old habitués once more loitering over possible "finds."

But a more permanent cause of the crippling of the publishing activities of France will be the cruel destruction which this war has occasioned among the young writers in every field of authorship, cut down often on the very threshold of their promise. This fact was brought home in a most touching way on All Saints' Day by the action of writers who form the society known as the Souvenir Littéraire. M. Olivier de Gourcuff, the talented founder of this admirable organization, was most happily inspired when he chose as the spot where the gray-haired living authors of Paris should honor their youthful confrères fallen in the defense of this same Paris, the head of the grand central alley of Père Lachaise Cemetery, where, with Bartholomé's powerful funeral allegories—the "Monument aux Morts"—forming the immediate background, a solemn, patriotic tribute was paid to the more than one hundred and fifty rising writers now lost forever to literature.

And here are the names of some of these victims which I select almost at hazard. Here I meet again with Ernest Psichari, the grandson of Renan; Pierre Leroy-Beaulieu, whose father and uncle, now dead, were both members of the Institute; Guy de Cassagnac, son of the once-famous Bonapartist Deputy; Claude Casimir-Périer, son of the former President of France; Jacques Rambaud, son of the historian of Russia; Jean Maspéro, related to the great Egyptologist; Georges Latapie, son of the director of La Liberté; and Robert d'Humières, descended from the marshal of that name, one of the favorites of Louis XIV.

NEW YORK BOOKSELLERS PRESENT PROTEST AGAINST SECOND-HAND ORDINANCE.

THE committee appointed by the Booksellers of New York to protest against the second-hand ordinance passed by the Board of Aldermen met with William Van Wirt, secretary to Police Commissioner Woods, in the offices of E. P. Dutton & Co. on Thursday and after an informal discussion forwarded to the Police Department, through Mr. Van Wirt, a formal protest of the new ordinance.

The protest pointed out that every bookstore in the city buys and sells second-hand books and that that classification included rare editions and priceless tomes. After indicating the distinction between the average dealer in second-hand articles and the bookseller, who was described as an important educational factor, the memorial declared that there was no need for police regulation because the method under which books were bought and sold had been in vogue more than a hundred years without objection. A humorous picture was drawn of the practical results of the provision that the bookseller must provide himself with a blank book, "ruled and paged, in which he must enter every book or magazine purchased on any given day between the hours of sunrise and sunset"; also of the difficulties involved in a description of the books purchased, the absurdity of recording each dog-eared mark, every inscription, "From dear Mother," "With fond love from Mary," in discarded gift books, as well as the impossibility of making an accurate description of the purchaser.

On behalf of the Police Commissioner Mr. Van Wirt promised the committee that the petition would be carefully considered.

HOW A LINE ENGRAVING IS MADE.

THE Mugler Engraving Company, of Cleveland, O., described the process of making a line engraving in a recent issue of its house organ. Users of line plates and half-tones know that the former is less expensive than the latter but the busy publicity man doesn't generally stop to inquire why this is so. The explanation lies in the fact that the process of making a line plate is less complicated.

The wet plate negative of the copy is made just as in the half-tone process, but the screen is not present. It is developed and stripped (reversed on the glass) just as in the former process. The reversed negative is then printed, not on copper, as a rule, except where extreme fineness is desired, but on the zinc sensitized with a solution similar to that employed in coating the copper plate for the half-tone.

The picture on the zinc plate is not visible at this stage of the process, and the plate is inked all over with ordinary printer's ink with a hand roller, and then gently washed in water. The ink is then seen to have adhered only to the light-hardened lines on the sensitized plate. You have a picture, the exact duplicate of the original, in ink on the plate, but of course reversed.

Now these ink lines are those from which the printing is to be done. But they must be made into actual raised printing surfaces. This is done by dusting the plate with resinous powder, which adheres only to the ink lines. The nitric-acid "bite" now eats into the plate, except on the lines protected by the rosin. Four to six "bites" are given. The edges of the lines to be held are then brushed with dragon's blood, a crimson powder, which when heated forms an acid resistant between each bite. This powder is brushed in four directions on the plate, in order that it may bank around the lines as well as on the top of them, for their complete protection from the acid.

When all the "bites" have been given, the whole surface of the plate has been lowered below the printing surface represented by the lines. And when you print from this plate, the ink of course adheres to the lines only, and you have your line drawing duplicated.

Cleaning the plates of the acid protective, routing and blocking complete the process.

The Ben Day process when required comes in and joins hands with this process of line engraving, just after the first washing in water. In other words, to the ink lines of the photographic reproductions on the plate are added other inked surfaces in dots, lines or any pattern, which may be used to fill up wide surfaces.

The only difference between a single color plate and multi-colored plates is that as many prints on zinc are made as there are colors to be printed, and the portions of the drawing that do not appear on any of the single plates are scratched off as the prints are made. Solid colors, that do not show in the original drawing, are, conversely, painted in.

SEVENTEEN CITIES TO HAVE SPRING BOOK EXHIBITS.

THE second "leg" of the series of twenty-five Home Library Week book exhibits inaugurated last fall will begin on February 28, when two exhibits will start out, the one from Elmira, N. Y., the other from Harrisburg, and work toward each other in ten-day and two-week moves through the remaining seventeen cities in the scheduled circuit. Cincinnati, Columbus, Toledo, Detroit, Milwaukee, St. Louis, Cleveland and Buffalo were covered in the two months preceding Christmas. The cities in which exhibits will be held this spring are: New Haven, Conn.; Hartford, Conn.; New Bedford, Mass.; Worcester, Mass.; Springfield, Mass.; Albany, N. Y.; Syracuse, N. Y.; Elmira, N. Y.; Harrisburg, Pa.; Lancaster, Pa.; Baltimore, Md.; Washington, D. C.; Richmond, Va.; Wilmington, Del.; Trenton, N. J.; Newark, N. J.

The entire costs of the campaign are being borne by the Globe-Wernicke Co. and the following publishers: Doubleday, Page & Co., Harper & Brothers, The Century Co., D. Appleton & Company, Henry Holt & Company, The Reilly & Britton Co., The University of Chicago Press, The John C. Winston Co., A. L. Burt Company, Frederick A. Stokes Company, George H. Doran Company, Little, Brown & Company, Funk & Wagnalls Company, Lothrop, Lee & Shepard Co., John Lane Company, Moffat, Yard & Co., The Penn Publishing Company, Grosset & Dunlap, Richard B. G. Gardner, formerly head of the Publishers' Co-operative Bureau, is directing the Home Library Week movement.

In most of the cities the exhibit will be held in the rooms of the local Globe-Wernicke dealer, although in other cases the public library, city club or board of trade will open its rooms to the exhibit. The exhibition itself embraces some 600 to 700 volumes and a number of original drawings and manuscripts. An attractive free programme is provided, which lists volumes on display by title, author and price, and gives the name and address of all local booksellers who are co-operating with the Home Library Week movement. No books are on sale in any of the displays; any demand that is stimulated is directed automatically to the booksellers whose names appear in the programme. Posters are provided free for display in schools, clubs, libraries, etc.; also announcement cards inviting the public to view the exhibit and to participate in the movement for better reading. In each city the booksellers have agreed to help along the exhibit by window displays and vigorous "boosting," though they are under no financial obligation.

MCLEOD & ALLEN DISSOLVED.

TORONTO, February 1.—One of the most important changes of recent years in the Canadian publishing business has just been announced. The firm of McLeod & Allen, well known as representatives in the Dominion of several United States houses, has been dissolved. The existing business has been taken over by Mr. McLeod and will be conducted in future under the name of George J. McLeod, while Mr. Allen is starting for himself as Thomas Allen, publisher and Canadian representative of publishers, with office at 219 Victoria Street.

Mr. Allen has just returned from Chicago and New York, where he made arrangements to become Canadian selling agent of M. A. Donohue & Co. and Rand, McNally & Co. He has also closed a deal with J. M. Dent & Sons, London, New York and Toronto, whereby he will become the sales medium of that company's Canadian branch. He has secured the services of J. G. Oliver, a highly qualified English bookman, formerly office manager of the Musson Book Co., and of M. J. McLean, for several years representative of J. M. Dent & Sons, and these two, under his direction, will cover Canada from coast to coast. It is also Mr. Allen's intention to do some publishing on his own account specializing in the work of Canadian authors.

George J. McLeod will continue to act as representative in Canada of Grosset & Dunlap, Hurst & Co., the Bobbs-Merrill Co., etc. He will have as his principal traveler, James Murie, who has been representing the firm of McLeod & Allen in eastern Canada for several years.

It was in 1901 that the partnership was formed between Messrs. McLeod and Allen. Mr. McLeod was at the time in business for himself in a very small way. He was a young American who had had experience on the road in the United States for both Rand, McNally & Co., and the United States Book Co. Mr. Allen was a traveler for the Methodist Book & Publishing Co. In combination, the two made a strong team. Mr. McLeod handled the office end effectively, and Mr. Allen was a tower of strength on the road. Between them they built up a big and successful business in popular books. The dissolution of partnership has come as a great surprise to the Canadian book trade.

BOOK-TRADE ASSOCIATIONS.

PITTSBURGH BOOKSELLERS' AND STATIONERS' ASSOCIATION.

THE fifteenth annual banquet of the Pittsburgh Booksellers' and Stationers' Association was held at the Fort Pitt Hotel on Tuesday evening, January 25th. Covers were laid for seventy in the assembly room, which was tastefully decorated with palms and cut flowers. A well-arranged program of instrumental and vocal music added to the pleasure of the dinner.

President George H. Alexander presided and acted as toastmaster of the evening. The first speaker was Rev. Samuel MacCauley Lindsay, of the Bellevue Baptist Church. Dr. Lindsay gave an entertaining address on "Robert Burns, Poet of the Scotch Hearthstone." The speaker was born within sight of Burns' home, and he added a very intimate touch to his description of the country in which the poet lived and wrote. The next address was by J. A. Harrison, Esq., who spoke on "The Life of Lincoln." The toastmaster next introduced Sidney J. Burgoyne, secretary of the Philadelphia Stationers' Association, who spoke on "The Relations Between Employers and Employees." He advised closer association and a striving for greater harmony in the relation of the employer and his employees. At the conclusion of Mr. Burgoyne's address, which was the last on the program, brief speeches were made by Alfred C. Ripper, L. E. Waterman, W. D. Bevin and S. J. Burgoyne.

The program and menu was handsomely printed and tied with blue and white ribbon, the colors of the association.

COMMUNICATIONS.

NATIONAL BABY WEEK—A BOOKSELLING OPPORTUNITY.

NEW YORK, January 31, 1916.

Editor THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY:

Why not follow up the success of "Juvenile Safety First" week? There is a chance to cultivate the "go-to-a-bookstore-for-a-book" habit in connection with National Baby Week, announced for March 4-11, 1916, by the United States Children's Bureau and the General Federation of Women's Clubs. Hundreds of cities will observe this week, although some have chosen a later date. See the December, January and February issues of the Ladies' Home Journal for information. Ask the Ladies' Home Journal for copies of the Pittsburgh Baby Week plays for your window display. Ask the United States Children's Bureau, Washington, D. C., for full information. Ask the Children's Bureau for a set of bulletins on the care of the baby and use in window with card stating that your patrons will be supplied by the Children's Bureau by making application inside. Ask the Children's Bureau for a select list of books and periodicals for you to stock or to offer for sale. Why not place a small ad. in the daily papers during Baby Week?

"SCRIBNER'S" LEADS IN PERCENTAGE OF DISTINCTIVE STORIES.

NEW YORK, February 1, 1916.

Editor THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY:

Referring to the article, "The American Short Story Output of 1915," which appears in the current issue of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, we quote from Mr. O'Brien's article in the Boston Transcript for January 8, as follows:

"I subjoin a list of such magazines as have published over twenty-five sort stories during the past year and have attained an average of over 15 per cent in the number of stories of distinction printed. In order of precedence based on these percentages the magazines rank as follows."

Then follows a list which has Scribner's at the head with the highest percentage—71 per cent. We do not think your article is quite a correct statement of the case. In all fairness to your friends among the magazines, it seems to us that both these lists should have been published, i. e., the one referred to above as well as the one which you do include in your article.

STOPPING THE REVIEW COPY SALE NUISANCE.

New York, February 1, 1916.

Editor THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY:

We have read with much interest Mr. Fifield's letter which appears in the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY for January 29th and has to do with the sale of review copies of books. We heartily agree with Mr. Fifield that this is a serious matter and one that concerns author, publisher and bookseller alike. We feel, however, that if all publishers would adopt the policy which we inaugurated some time ago the problem would be, to a large extent, solved. Every book which we send out for press purposes bears on its title page a perforated stamp indicating that it has been supplied for editorial use. This renders it practically unsalable; in fact since we have followed this custom we have had hardly a complaint on the sale of review stock.

There is one aspect of this matter which seems to us to be of the utmost importance and that is the bearing which this question of the sale of review copies has on price cutting. As a result of a somewhat extensive inquiry which we made some time ago we have come to the conclusion that the sale of books sent out for review is responsible in a large measure for price cutting and that if it were possible to do away with this kind of sale altogether we would thereby eliminate price cutting in the book trade to a considerable degree.

Is it not, therefore, distinctly to the bookseller's advantage to see that books intended for review are so marked that they cannot be sold? Otherwise there is always the possibility that they may be sold at a reduced figure and thus enter into competition with the copies which the bookseller has purchased on regular terms.

OBITUARY NOTES.

SIR CLEMENTS ROBERT MARKHAM, scientist and explorer, died in London on January 30 in his eighty-seventh year. He was at one time president of the Royal Geographical Society and was the author of the following books: "Life of the Great Lord Fairfax"; "The Fighting Veres"; "History of Peru"; "Threshold of the Unknown Region"; "Memoir of the Indian Surveys"; "History of Persia"; "History of the Abyssinian Expedition"; "Missions to Tibet"; "Lives of Columbus, John Davis, and Major Rennell"; "Travels in Peru and India"; "Ollanta," an Inca drama translated from the Quichua; "The Paladins of Edwin the Great"; "Richard Third: His Life and Character," 1907; "Quichua Dictionary," 1908; "Life of Sir Leopold McClintock," 1909; "The Story of Majorca and Minorca"; "The Incas of Peru," 1910. He also edited twenty-two volumes for the Hakluyt Society and two for the Navy Records Society.

DR. JOSEPH JACOBS, a noted Jewish scholar, died at his home in Yonkers, New York, on January 27. He was born in Sydney, New South Wales in 1854, and was educated at St. John's College, Cambridge, England. He entered life as a scholar, journalist, and lecturer, making the ancient and modern history of Judaism his principal study. During his residence in England Dr. Jacobs achieved wide fame for his researches in Jewish history and folklore. He was a leading contributor to The Athenaeum from 1896 to 1899, editor of the "Jewish Year-Book," 1896-

99, of Folklore through the latter becoming distinguished as an authority on the migration of fables and mythology from race to race and their developments from period to period, and the "Literary Year-Book," 1898-99. In 1900 Dr. Jacobs came to this country to take part in the editing of the Funk & Wagnalls "Jewish Encyclopedia." He was professor of literature and rhetoric at the Jewish Theological Seminary of America, 1906-13, and at the time of his death was editor of The American Hebrew. He was the author of: "English Fairy Tales," 1890; "Studies in Jewish Statistics," 1890; "Celtic Fairy Tales," 1891; "Indian Fairy Tales," 1892; "Tennyson and In Memoriam," 1892; "Jews of Angevin England," 1893; "More Celtic Fairy Tales," 1894; "Studies in Biblical Archaeology," 1894; "Statistics of Jewish Population in London," 1894; "Aesop's Fables," 1894; "Literary Studies," 1895; "Reynard the Fox," 1895; "As Others Saw Him," his great imaginative life of Christ from the Jewish point of view, 1895; "Sources of the History of the Jews in Spain," 1895; "Jewish Ideals," 1896; "Wonder Voyages," 1896; "Story of Geographical Discovery," 1898. Mr. Jacobs also translated Balthasar Gracian's "Art of Worldly Wisdom" from the Spanish in 1892 and "Tales from Boccaccio" in 1896. He published editions of North's "Tales of Bidpai," 1897; Caxton's "Esop," 1897; Painter's "Palace of Pleasure," 1891; Howell's "Familiar Letters," 1892; Day's "Daphnis and Chloe," 1890. He also wrote introductions to the Book of Job, "The Arabian Nights," Morris's "Old French Romances," Goldsmith's "Comedies," Thackeray's "Esmond," Jane Austen's "Emma," and Chamisso's "Peter Schlemihl."

PERSONAL NOTES.

MARY ROBERTS RINEHART was successfully operated upon for appendicitis in Pittsburg last week.

GEORGE L. GOODMAN has returned to New York after several months spent in Japan, China, Korea and Philippine Islands.

MRS. ANNA SHEPPARD MORRIS OF BOGGS & Buhl, Pittsburgh, has resigned as buyer for books and stationery to accept the position of buyer for same departments with the J. L. Hudson Co., of Detroit.

E. W. VAN WAGENEN has severed his connection with the Dodge Publishing Company with whom he has been for many years and has become associated with A. L. Reed Co., Richmond Hill, N. Y.

WILL IRWIN, author and war correspondent, married Inez Haynes Gillmore, author of "Phoebe and Ernest," "Janey," and other books, on February 1. They sailed immediately for Europe where their honeymoon will be spent at the front.

F. HOPKINSON SMITH, author and artist, who died April 7, 1915, left a total estate of $43,846, having a net value of $37,157. Mrs. Josephine V. D. Smith, widow, was the sole beneficiary. The assets included: deposits, $5107; pictures, $12,340; due from Charles Scribner's Sons for books to be used in connection with their magazine, $2889; royalties due from Charles Scribner's Sons, estimated by them at $7500; contract with same firm for an unpublished book, "Felix O'Day," estimated by them at $7500; royalties due from Houghton Mifflin Co., $200; royalties due from Doubleday, Page & Co., $100; estimated value of contract with Vitagraph Company of America for the moving-picture rights on "Kennedy Square," $3000; stocks and bonds, $5000.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS' little house organ, The Book Buyer, appears with the January, 1916, issue in a smaller form, $3\frac{1}{2} \times 6\frac{1}{4}$ inches.

THE AUTHOR of "Whispering Smith," Frank H. Spearman, has written a new western novel, "Nan of Music Mountain," which will be a Scribner fiction leader for the late spring.

THE AUSTRIAN Index Librorum Prohibitorum already includes several hundred works. Baden-Powell's "My Adventures as a Spy" is among the books banned.

IN RESPONSE to an appeal by Herbert Samuel, the British postmaster-general, two million books and magazines have been donated by the public for free transmission to the troops, sailors and prisoners of war.

MR. CLODE writes us that he thinks Sewell Ford's "Shorty McCabe on the Job" should have been included in the suggestive list of humorous books mentioned in the Annual Summary Number. It might very well have been.

SENATOR ASHURST introduced the Stephens bill into the Senate on January 27 in a form identical with the bill as introduced into the House, save that the paragraph excepting libraries appears to have been omitted.

THE ENGLISH HOUSE of Thomas Nelson & Sons has become a private limited company, with a capital of £300,000 in £350,000 preference and £40,000 ordinary shares of £1 each. The first directors are Thomas A. Nelson, I. T. Nelson, G. M. Brown, J. Buchan.

THE BOBBS-MERRILL Co. will publish this month "Ways to Lasting Peace," by David Starr Jordan, an elaboration of Dr. Jordan's address before the World's Peace Congress at the session held in October, 1915, in connection with the Panama-Pacific Exposition.

THE CONNECTICUT SEAMAN'S FRIEND SOCIETY made its usual Christmas gift of a case of carefully selected books to the crew of the battleship Connecticut. The books were supplied by the Edward P. Judd Company of New Haven, and were accompanied by a thousand Christmas cards.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. announce a timely and important biography, "Eleutherios Venizelos, His Life and Work," by Dr. G. Kerofilos. The English translation has been done by Miss Beatrice Barstow. The author is said to be an intimate friend of the Greek minister and has accompanied him upon some of his diplomatic missions.

G. K. CHESTERTON has been strangely silent since the war started. A new volume of political, historical, social and literary essays by him will be published, however, by Lane on February 11 under the title "The Crimes of England." On the same date will appear "The Paths of Glory," a series of articles by Anatole France called forth by the war.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY has assumed the publication in this country of John Masefield's play, "The Tragedy of Nan," and issued it Wednesday, February 2, in binding uniform with Mr. Masefield's other plays. In addition to the title piece the new volume includes two other plays by Masefield, "The Camden Wonder" and "Mrs. Harrison."

MOFFAT, YARD & COMPANY announce for early publication "The Silver Spoon," a novel by Reginald Wright Kauffman, the story of a rich man who, notwithstanding all his inherited wealth, has the virtues and characteristics supposed to belong to humbler walks of life.

THAT ORISON SWETT MARDEN has not lost his optimism is attested by his new inspirational book, "The Victorious Attitude," published by Thomas Y. Crowell Co. The following are among the chapter headings: "Making Dreams Come True," "Making Yourself a Prosperity Magnet," and "The Triumph of Health Ideals."

GEORGE B. McCLELLAN, ex-mayor of New York City, and now professor of Economics at Princeton University, is the author of "The Heel of War" which the G. W. Dillingham Co. issued on January 15th. Mr. McClellan spent many months travelling through the war-stricken countries of Europe that he might study conditions at first hand.

ROBERT M. MCBRIDE & Co.'s spring fiction list includes Sax Rohmer's "The Return of Fu-Manchu," for the lover of thrills; Maurice Hewlett's new novel, "Frey and His Wife," a romance of Norway in the Ninth Century; Warwick Deeping's "The Bridge of Desire," a modern story of love and marriage; a new edition of a novel of Italy, "Traumerei," by Leona Dalrymple; and a romance of rural England, "The Home Coming," by a new author, Constance Holme.

A NEW CAROLYN WELLS detective story is announced for February publication by the J. B. Lippincott Co. In "Curved Blades" her sleuth hero makes the fatal blunder of falling in love—only the publishers say it doesn't prove fatal in this case! Another February novel from the same house will be T. Everett Harre's "Behold the Woman!," a historical novel of the redemption of an Alexandrine woman in the fifth century.

ALFRED A. KNOPF has just brought out a new edition of de Vogue's "The Russian Novel." This work, which has passed through a dozen editions in France and has been translated into almost every European language, tells of the origin, rise and progress of the novel in Russia—dealing more especially with Pushkin, Gogol, Turgenev, Dostoevsky and Tolstoy—and was chiefly instrumental in winning for its author a seat in the French Academy.

"THE SPIRIT OF FRANCE," Owen Johnson's new book dealing with his experiences with the French in the war zone, is promised by Little, Brown & Co. for February 9. Included in the volume is the interview with General Joffre which created considerable comment when it was published in Collier's. Little, Brown & Co. have just taken over Owen Johnson's three Lawrenceville stories—"The Prodigious Hickey," "The Varmint," and "The Tennessee Shad"—and are reissuing these tales of American school life in a uniform edition.

THE AMERICAN FAN will be interested in Rupert Brooke's impression of baseball set forth in the volume of "Letters from America" just published by Scribner's—it reminded him of the Russian ballet! "There is much excitement in the game, but little beauty except in the long-limbed 'pitcher,' whose duty it is to hurl the ball rather farther than the length of a cricket-pitch, as bewilderingly as possible. In his efforts to combine speed, mystery, and curve, he gets into attitudes of a very novel and fantastic, but quite obvious beauty. M. Nijinsky would find that they would repay study."

A GROUP OF SCHOLARLY BOOKS was published February 1 by the Yale University Press: "Leonard da Vinci—the Artist and the Man," by Prof. Osvald Siren; "Industrial Leadership," in which H. L. Gantt applies the principles of scientific management to broader fields; "The Covent-Garden Journal," a reprint of Henry Fielding's articles from the fourth and last periodical edited by the great novelist; and "Changes in the Food Supply and Their Relation to Nutrition," by Lafayette B. Mendel, who explains how commerce affects diet, and discusses the change in food necessitated in Germany by war conditions.

MACMILLAN is publishing a new and final edition of the "Short History of the English People," by J. R. Green. The original edition, which appeared in 1874, in which there had been inaccuracies of detail, was revised according to Mr. Green's special directions. In this work Mrs. Green has had the advantage of Mr. Green's own corrections, and Professor Gardiner, Mr. Lecky, Lord Bryce, Bishop Stubbs, Bishop Creighton, and others have been consulted on difficult questions. The edition about to be published includes an epilogue which continues the history to the present day.

THROUGH THE CO-OPERATION of three Yale graduates, an author, a publisher, and a bookseller, the collection of war trophies brought from Belgium by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur H. Gleason was exhibited at New Haven at the store of the Edward P. Judd Company, where it created a sensation. The collection was first shown by invitation to members of the Yale faculty and other people specially interested, after which it was placed in the show window where it was surrounded by a crowd which frequently blocked the entrance to the store. "Young Hilda at the Wars" will not soon be forgotten in New Haven, we are told.

RAND, McNALLY & Co. announce for April publication "About Miss Mattie Morning-glory" by Lilian Bell. Miss Mattie is a plain, middle-aged milliner, who has become engaged to a worthless scamp who is deceiving and robbing her. When he is caught in a diamond robbery her eyes are opened and she discovers his character. Miss Mattie is sent to a hospital and while recovering from her grief over her shattered dream she is aroused from the selfishness of her grief by learning that a dangerous operation is to be performed on an orphaned child in the next cot. Her adoption of the child leads to Matt McCabe's falling in love with her—and her love story begins all over again.

THE ENGLISH BOOK TRADE is finally being forced to respond to the pinch of war times by a raise in the price of certain publications. On January 1, Cassell & Co. sent a notice to the trade stating that, "owing to the great increase in the cost of production," the published price of the People's Library has been raised from eightpence net to ninepence net, of the Pocket Reference Library from six to sevenpence net, cloth, and one shilling to one shilling and threepence net, leather, and juveniles, toy and picture books published at subject prices raised by one penny in every shilling of the published price." Some fifteen five to ten-shilling non-fiction titles have been made net.

IT WAS THE EXPERIENCES of Rev. J. A. Zahm, author of "Along the Andes and Down the Amazon," etc., that first attracted Theodore Roosevelt, and when Roosevelt decided upon his scientific expedition, Dr. Zahm largely organized, equipped and managed the affair. Dr. Zahm accompanied Roosevelt on his South American Wanderjahr, and, using the Roosevelt itinerary as a basis for his story, Dr. Zahm has written "Through South America's Southlands," in which he tells of the history, the romance, and the present-day status of Brazil, the Argentine, Chile, Paraguay and Uruguay. The volume, which Appleton will publish at once, contains 65 interesting illustrations.

IN ADDITION to Theodore Roosevelt's "Fear God and Take Your Own Part" the George H. Doran Co. will publish on February 10 "The Oakleyites," a novel of village life by E. F. Benson, author of "Dodo" and "Arundel," "The Immortal Gymnasts," by Marie Cher, and a new George A. Birmingham novel, "Gossamer." This last is said to be a more serious story than its author has before written, and entirely different from his earlier successes. The central figure is a financier like the Rothchilds and Morgans, of whom the author gives a marvelous picture—his power, his fine vision, his clean-living and sensitive private self, the pathetic loneliness of his position. Most of the scene is laid in America.

HE WHO SETS OUT to read the history of the Papacy with its more than 250 Popes takes upon himself a task equal to his who set out from north Italy or from France in early days to walk to the Holy City on the Tiber with peas in his shoes. Scarcely a dozen of the first hundred Popes, for instance, contributed materially to the making of the Papacy. In Joseph McCabe's "Crises in the History of the Papacy" which the Putnams will issue at once a happy selection has been made of twenty Popes whose careers and influence were important in the development of the church and in the history of the world. The reader of serious tastes will find Mr. McCabe's work as easy reading as was the walking to the canny old pilgrim who boiled the peas before putting them in his shoes.

PICK-UPS.

THE NEW YORK "TIMES" OPINION OF THE ORDINANCE RESTRICTING BOOKSELLERS.

"AN ordinance adopted by the Board of Aldermen last November and approved by Mayor Mitchell December 31 puts that well-known dangerous character, the bookseller, in bonds under which he writhes. He may sell books only from sunrise to sunset. He must take out a license and file a bond. He may not go to a customer's house to sell, buy, or appraise books. He must keep a record of every book he buys and of the seller's name. The record must be subject to police inspection. In short, suspicion and strict police surveillance are to be the bookseller's portion. He is to be hampered and bothered. It would be much easier and more comfortable for him to sell rum. The date for the ordinance to go into effect has been changed by Mayor Mitchell, after a committee of booksellers had set its beauties before his eyes, from January 1 to the more appropriate April 1. It is a lovely flower of wisdom. Where did Mr. Alderman Brush, who introduced it, find it blooming? Because a few books are stolen, all booksellers must be pestered. The prohibition of the sale of a book after sunset will give the booksellers' clerks short winter hours, and what a fine, whimsical notion the whole ordinance is, The Wise Men of Gotham forever!"

Benson, E: Frederic. The Oakleyites. N. Y., Doran. c. '15 343 p. D $1.35 n.

Dorothy Jackson had lived all her life, except for vacations on the continent, in the practically manless town of Oakley. In her thirty-fifth year, society was thrown into a flutter by the advent of Wilfred Easton, a novelist, who with his mother took the house next to Dorothy's. Friendship grew up between the two, which on Dorothy's part became love. Wilfred's affection for her was deepening when Daisy, a younger sister of Dorothy's, returned. Daisy would have none of the love Wilfred offered her. Round the two romances moves the amusing life of the town, with its bickering and little scandals.

No one knows anything of Bab's family history. She has lived in a boarding house as the protégée of the landlady. One of the boarders, keen to fill his lonely life, plans a great future for her. Suddenly Mapy announces to Bab that he has found a clue to her relatives, and that she is the grand-daughter of a famous millionaire. After this Bab finds herself buffeted back and forth between poverty and affluence. Finally she is confronted with the astounding problem of deciding whether she shall marry a rich man who loves her, to save a friend from jail, or whether she shall refuse and marry a poor man whom she loves. Could it have been more exciting if she had to choose between "lawyer, Indian-chief"?

The Publishers' Weekly

Subscription Rates.

One year, postage prepaid in the United States, $4.00; foreign, $5.00.

Single copies, 10 cents. Educational Number, in leatherette, 50 cents; Christmas Bookshelf, 25 cents.

Advertising Rates.

One page..... $25 00
Half page..... 14 00
Quarter page..... 7 00
Eighth page..... 4 00
One-sixteenth page..... 2 00

The above rates are for unspecified positions. Special rates for preferred positions (full pages only).

Higher rates are charged for the Summer Reading, Educational Number and Christmas Bookshelf, and for the monthly Book Review supplement sections.

Advertising copy should reach us Tuesday noon—earlier if proof is desired out-of-town. Forms close Thursday night.

Under the heading "BOOKS WANTED" book-trade subscribers, under their own names, are given five nonpareil lines (exclusive of address) free advertisement for specified books, not more than one title to the line, in any issue except special numbers, but not exceeding 100 lines a year. If over five lines are sent the excess is at 10 cents a line. Unspecified wants, reprinted matter, and all advertisements from non-subscribers, cost 10 cents a line. Objectionable books are excluded so far as they are noted.

In answering, please state edition, condition and price, including postage or express charges. Houses that will deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis should put [Cash] after their firm name. The appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the WEEKLY does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it endeavors to safeguard its columns by withholding the privileges of advertising should occasion arise, booksellers should take usual precautions in extending credit.

"Books Wanted" must be designated by actual title, not by "any."

Write your wants plainly, on one side of the sheet only. Illegible "wants" are ignored. The WEEKLY is not responsible for errors. Parties with whom there is no account must pay in advance.

Under "BOOKS FOR SALE" or for other small undisplayed advertisements, the charge is 10 cents a nonpareil line. No reduction for repeated matter. Count seven words to the line.

Have You Ever Studied a Foreign Language?

No doubt you have often felt disgusted with the poor progress made in your study, and probably dropped it for this reason.

And yet, admit, there is a certain fascination in being able to master a number of foreign words.

Here is something novel:

THE GAME OF

LINGO

A Card Game that will teach you nearly 400 useful words of French or Spanish—as you may choose.

A Game that can be used in the parlor, on the train, on the car, in the office, or anywhere, any time you wish.

TO PLAY WITH A GOOD PURPOSE

Booksellers and stationers, here is a good, profitable item for you. Your customers will thank you for it.

ONE OF THE BOOKS

Which we recently manufactured complete was the "Anthology of Magazine Verse" for Gomme and Marshall.

Concerning this book the New York Times Book Review of January 9th has the following very flattering comment:

"And if the editor of the Anthology deserves praise for the work of his brain and hand, it would seem only fair to add that he has been ably seconded by the hand and brain of his publisher. A more tasteful and beautiful volume than the 'Anthology of Magazine Verse for 1915' would be hard to find—certainly at the very modest price asked for it."

Reference List of New Publications

Recorded in JANUARY, 1916

This Reference List enters the books recorded during the month under (1) author, in Clarendon type, anonymous books having Clarendon type for the first word; (2) title in Roman; (3) subject-heading in SMALL CAPS; (4) name of series in Italics.

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A: Augustus; B: Benjamin; C: Charles; D: David; E: Edward; F: Frederick; G: George; H: Henry; I: Isaac; J: John; L: Louis; N: Nicholas; P: Peter; R: Richard; S: Samuel; T: Thomas. W: William.

For books received sizes are given in CAPS, Q, O, D, etc., books not received sizes are given in Roman numerals, 4°, 8°, 12°, etc. Prices are added except when not supplied by publisher or obtainable only on specific request. Where not specified the binding is cloth.

Those desiring to learn the entire publishing output of the month in any one field should look under one of the following MAIN HEADINGS:

PHILOSOPHY	MEDICINE	LITERATURE
RELIGION AND THEOLOGY	AGRICULTURE	POETRY
SOCIOLOGY	HOUSEHOLD ECONOMICS	DRAMA
LAW	BUSINESS	FICTION
EDUCATION	ENGINEERING, TECHNOLOGY	BIOGRAPHY
PHILOLOGY	FINE ARTS	GEOGRAPHY AND TRAVEL
SCIENCE	GAMES, SPORTS, AMUSEMENTS	HISTORY

Besides the titles listed under each of these headings cross reference is made from each to a limited number of cognate headings which collectively give all the new publications of the month in the given subject or group of subjects.

Inquirers looking for books on a specific topic should look under the general subject to which that topic belongs, i.e. GEOLOGY rather than SILURIAN PERIOD; MATHEMATICS rather than CALCULUS; ECONOMICS rather than WAGES. Books regarding specific Religious denominations, countries and persons, however, should still be sought for under their individual names.

Just Out!!!

L T. T. LINCOLN, former clergyman, member of Parliament and confessed German spy, whose latest adventure reads like a chapter from E. Phillips Oppenheim.

LINCOLN, SPY, FLEES WITH PLOT PAPERS

Former Member of Parliament,
Held Here for Extradition,
Escapes from U. S. Deputy

Had Promised the Government to Read Secret German Code.
Seized in Recent Arrests

Revelations Explain Why the Department of Justice Has Thrown Out Nation-Wide Net

A portfolio of papers invaluable to the Government in its international spy plot investigations disappeared last Saturday from a Brooklyn restaurant. With them went Ignatius Timothy Trebich Lincoln, confessed German spy, and former member of Parliament.

Lincoln, the International Spy, has written a book as thrilling as his adventures.

REVELATIONS OF AN INTERNATIONAL SPY

has just been published. You'll want to read it.
Order it to-day. THE BOOK OF THE YEAR!

Illustrated with corroborative letters and documents.

Union Square, No., NEW YORK

Lippincott's Spring Fiction

FEBRUARY

Curved Blades by Carolyn Wells

Author of "The White Alley."

Frontispiece by Gayle Hoskins. $1.35 Net. Postage extra.

You know Fleming Stone. Did you think he could fall in love? In the midst of as amazing a murder mystery as could be conceived, the heart of the great sleuth is pierced with one of Cupid's darts. This is a fine old-fashioned detective story—the kind that grabs you, holds you, leaves you feeling part and parcel of a terrific drama of crime and detection.

Behold the Woman! by T. Everett Harre

$1.35 Net. Postage Extra.

A child of the Alexandrine gutter, a petted beauty of the Alexandrine Palaces, a Queen of Alexandrine sinners, a redeemed woman seeing the vision of Christ upon the Judean Hills, and finally a mystic saint upon the desert, was Mary of Egypt, the heroine of this colossal, historical novel of redemption in the Fifth Century, A. D.

MARCH

The Finding of Jasper Holt by Grace Livingston Hill Lutz

Author of "Miranda," etc., etc.

Three illustrations in color by E. F. Bayha. $1.25 Net. Postage Extra.

A love story of a Western man and an Eastern woman. To rise to the occasion he needs the agencies of an exciting railroad accident, a horse race and loads of beautiful roses from his own garden, but he succeeds, and the reader rejoices. Mrs. Lutz's heart and humor are on every page.

Adam's Garden by Nina Wilcox Putnam

Frontispiece in color by H. Weston Taylor.

$1.25 Net. Postage Extra.

Adam's fate was to work out his salvation and win his girl by raising flowers upon a vacant city lot, surrounded by cats and dogs, dwelling with crusty humorous curmudgeons who drift from everywhere, having a feud with a thug and being desperately loved by an unfortunate girl. A big story with humanity its theme.

The Strange Cases of Mason Brant

by Nevil Monroe Hopkins, Illustrated in color by Gayle Hoskins.

$1.25 Net. Postage Extra.

Criminology is a difficult art when we know that a man can put a little radium in your hat and drive you stark crazy. This is but one of the mysteries that cross the path of Mason Brant, cosmopolitan gentleman. The author, a scientist, attacks the situation with a refreshing originality.

NOW SELLING

A Man's Reach by Sally Nelson Robins

Three illustrations in color by Edmund Frederick.

$1.25 Net. Postage Extra.

A Virginia story told by a Virginian. Randolph Turberville is the scion of an aristocratic Virginia house; his struggle against evil forces begins at the University of Virginia. Fascinating, he is adored by all, especially by Lettice Corbin, for whom he saves himself. Serious, yet shot through with laughter and sunshine, is the nature of the treatment.

The Conquest by Sidney L. Nyburg

Author of "The Final Verdict."

$1.25 Net. Postage Extra.

The history of the life of a brilliant lawyer—intensely interesting as a mere story—is in itself a searching criticism of American life. John Howard rose to fortune. Was the reward worth the battle?—how he answers the question and the story of his last illogical act of heroism is absorbing, and will compel thought.
